2.2 Long vowel sounds

Today, we are going to learn about something called "Long Vowel Sounds." Vowels are special letters in the alphabet that make different sounds when we say them. The long vowel sounds are like the superheroes of vowels because they sound a bit different than their normal sounds.

Let me introduce you to our first superhero, the letter 'a.' Normally, 'a' makes a sound like /a/ in words like cat and hat. But when 'a' becomes a long vowel, it puts on a cape and starts to say its name. So instead of /a/ it says /ay/. Imagine 'a' wearing a superhero cape and saying /ay/ like in the words cake and snake.

Next, we have the letter 'e.' Normally, 'e' sounds like /e/ in words like bed and pet. But when 'e' becomes a long vowel, it gets a shiny crown and starts to say its name too. So instead of /e/ it says /ee/. Picture 'e' wearing a crown and saying /ee/ like in the words tree and bee.

Now, let's meet our third superhero, the letter 'i.' Normally, 'i' sounds like /i/ in words like sit and pig. But when 'i' becomes a long vowel, it puts on a special hat and starts to say its name as well. So instead of /i/ it says /igh/. Imagine 'i' wearing a special hat and saying /igh/ like in the words night and light.

Our fourth superhero is the letter 'o.' Normally, 'o' sounds like /o/ in words like dog and pot. But when 'o' becomes a long vowel, it gets a cool cape and starts to say /oh/. So instead of /o/ it says /oa/. Picture 'o' wearing a cool cape and saying /oa/ like in the words boat and coat.

Lastly, we have the letter 'u.' Normally, 'u' sounds like /u/ in words like cup and bug. But when 'u' becomes a long vowel, it gets some magical wings and starts to say /oo/. So instead of /u/ it says /oo/. Imagine 'u' with magical wings saying /oo/ like in the words moon and zoo.

I hope you now have a better understanding of long vowel sounds. Remember, our superheroes 'a', 'e', 'i', 'o', and 'u' put on special outfits and sound different when they become long vowels. Have fun exploring these sounds in words and finding more examples around you!
